Joe Staton, Head of Market Dynamics at GfK, says:

“In the face of widespread reports of rampant inflation, stagnating wages and anxiety over our borrowing binge, UK consumer confidence is surprisingly stable. Although the Overall Index Score remains in negative territory, and has dipped this month, we have not seen any evidence of the predicted post-Trigger downturn, despite high levels of concern about the general economic situation of the country. Consumers continue to remain positive about the state of their personal finances and even report that now is a good time to buy. But is this too good to be true? Is this simply the calm before the storm? Is pre-Brexit economic turbulence yet to really batter households? That threat cannot be ruled out. But for the moment, consumer sentiment remains relatively buoyant as we enter our two-year window of renegotiation and navigate the run-up to the General Election.”

About the survey

- The UK Consumer Confidence Barometer is conducted by GfK on behalf of the EU, with similar surveys being conducted in each European country. In producing its own reports on the whole of Europe, the EU applies a seasonal adjustment to the data, to smooth out any changes that are functions, at least in part, of the time of year.
- Historically, the UK data have not been seasonally adjusted in this way, and to maintain comparability, GfK continues not to apply this adjustment. This can lead to situations where the EU figures show different movements in a particular month from those produced by GfK. Individual months may be affected, but the long-term trend is not.
- The UK Consumer Confidence Survey from GfK was conducted amongst a sample of 2001 individuals aged 16+ on behalf of the European Commission.
- Quotas are imposed on age, sex, region and social class to ensure the final sample is representative of the UK population.
- Interviewing was carried out during April 1st – 12th 2017.
- The figures contained within the Consumer Confidence Barometer have an estimated margin of error of +/-2%.
- Results for the Consumer Confidence Barometer are normally available on the last working day of each month at 00.01am (unless the final working day of a month is a Monday, in which case the results are published on the Friday preceding the final working day). The release date for May 2017 is Wednesday 31st May 2017.
- Any published material requires a reference to both GfK and the European Commission e.g. 'Research carried out by GfK on behalf of the European Commission'.
- This study has been running since 1974. Back data is available from 1996.
- The table below provides an overview of the questions asked to obtain the individual index measures:

Personal Financial Situation (Q1/Q2)	This index is based on the following questions to consumers: 'How has the financial situation of your household changed over the last 12 months?' 'How do you expect the financial position of your household to change over the next 12 months?' (a lot better – a little better – stay(ed) the same – a little worse – a lot worse)
General Economic Situation (Q3/Q4)	This index is based on the following questions to consumers: 'How do you think the general economic situation in this country has changed over the last 12 months?' 'How do you expect the general economic situation in this country to develop over the next 12 months?' (a lot better – a little better – stay(ed) the same – a little worse - a lot worse)
Major Purchase Index (Q8)	This index is based on the following question to consumers: 'In view of the general economic situation, do you think now is the right time for people to make major purchases such as furniture or electrical goods?' (right time – neither right nor wrong time – wrong time)
Savings Index (Q10)	This index is based on the following question to consumers: 'In view of the general economic situation do you think now is?' (a very good time to save – a fairly good time to save – not a good time to save – a very bad time to save) (Commented on but not included in the Index Score)
