

Commercial Radio & Audio

Commercial Radio & Audio Ltd (CRA) is the peak industry body representing the interests of commercial radio broadcasters throughout Australia.

CRA pursues a range of issues on behalf of its member stations. CRA staff specialise in areas such as regulatory and legislative matters; industrial relations; human resources; marketing; events management; advertising advice; audience measurement surveys and research; and DAB+ digital radio.

Commercial radio broadcasting began in 1925. CRA was established in 1930 as the Federation of Australian Radio Broadcasters (FARB). FARB became an incorporated company in 1993 and changed its name to Commercial Radio Australia Limited in 2002, and changed to Commercial Radio & Audio Limited in 2022. FARB was founded with 33 members. Today, CRA has 260 members, representing 100% of commercial radio licensees on air.

In recent times there has been a consolidation of radio station ownership. Commercial member radio stations are now owned by over 30 operators, with 80% of the stations formed into 12 networks.

The Board of CRA is elected by the industry at the annual general meeting and includes a chairman and a vice chairman (regional) and up to nine other directors representing metropolitan and regional commercial radio broadcasters.
